This 64,000 sf building houses administrative offices for the Dean of Health and Human Services, associated department heads and faculty, in addition to a computer laboratory. Due to the preexisting need and demand for administrative and laboratory space on campus, the design and construction sequence was accelerated. The building's systems and materials were selected to effectively accommodate strict, low-maintenance requirements and to reduce long-term life-cycle costs. Sophisticated wire management techniques were also incorporated to facilitate both current and future campus-wide networking capabilities.
